

Density goes up and down through the x axis. How do we model this with our axis vectors?