

I sent this email from your own account cdwrite@other.debian.org

Hello,

We are the ShinyHunters hacking group.

A few months ago, we gained access to your devices and started monitoring your online activities.

What happened:

We easily accessed your email.

You weren't very careful about the links you opened.

A week later, we installed an exploit on your devices, including your phone, giving us access to your microphone, camera, keyboard, and all your data.

We have your photos, browsing history, conversations, and contact list.

Among other things, we discovered that you frequently visit adult websites and watch explicit videos.

We managed to record you and created videos of you pleasuring yourself.

With a few clicks, we can share these videos with your friends, colleagues, and family or even make them public.

Proposal:

Send us $3491 in Bitcoin to the following wallet:

1c1t5WyU8xv4QFMw8cDwyBuFvqx8TbumN

We'll delete everything immediately.

You have 48 hours from the moment you open this email.

Once the payment is received, we'll remove the malware from your devices.

What you should NOT do:

Do not reply (email was sent from your own account).

Do not contact the police or anyone else—we'll release the videos along with other stuff all over the internet.

Do not try to reset your devices—everything is stored on remote servers.

What you don't need to worry about:

We will see your payment immediately—the wallet is generated specifically for you.

We will not share your videos or other things after payment—there is no reason to continue causing problems.
