Bidi v1.0.3. To demonstrate how in RTL mode the verse environment disrespects the indented space of displayed material, I place some random text here. Also note the placement of punctuation signs in RTL mode when using Latin script. The first three sections use the verse environment:

> This is a test case with some words. No meaning here. This is a > test case with some words. No meaning here. This is a test > case with some words. No meaning here.

> a is This  here. meaning No  words. some with case test a is This > test a is This  here. meaning No  words. some with case test
> here. meaning No  words. some with case

و نیک این تو ذات و ذات تو نیک اوی از دیگر ذات ایزدان و یزن دهم ای هورمزد و یعنی اذر دنیای اوی کویم و یعنی ذات

این تو نیکتر ست

Quote: This is a test case with some words. No meaning here. This is a test case with some words. No meaning here. This is a test case with some words. No meaning here.

here. meaning No words. some with case test a is This RTL: Quote a is This  here. meaning No  words. some with case test a is This here. meaning No  words. some with case test

The random text outside the environments continues here; again, just to show the paragraph boundaries and some environments' behaviour in RTL mode.
